As a representative for Moda Fabrics, Eileen Taylor immersed herself in the quilting industry and dreamed of designing fabric. Soon she and graphic designer and artist Lynn Hawley Bloomquist pooled their talents to design the Holly Taylor fabric collection, creating more than 30 lines of Northwoods-theme fabrics for Moda.

This niche suits the Minnesota women well: Both take inspiration from their home state’s natural beauty. The lacy pattern of leaves chewed by insects, the colors of the sunset over a lake, and the movement of water bugs dancing in reflections on water find their way into Holly Taylor designs.

On the far eastern side of Lake Superior, just off the Canadian shore lies a small island called Maple Island. There are tree lined paths down to the water that make a canopy overhead. In the fall of the year the colors are brilliant. The rich tones of the oak and maple are spectacular in shades of red, gold, orange and green. We hope we have conveyed the feel of this small but wondrous place in your mind in the fabric line we have designed for you.
